Communists Hail Progress As Indication of Ability to Put Program Over

By Associated Press
St. Paul—Faced with financial troubles, coming on top of a Communist victory Tuesday in the first open skirmish of the gathering, delegates to the national Farmer-Labor Progressive convention Wednesday began work in an uncertain state of mind.

Charles E. Taylor, state senator from Montana, who was elected permanent chairman of the convention Tuesday, said he had no definite program in mind for Wednesday aside from the selection of standing committees and his formal speech as permanent chairman.

Senator Magnus Johnson had been tentatively proposed as a speaking member of the convention by William Mahoney, temporary chairman, but the initial successes of the Communists made his appearance before the convention doubtful. Chairman Taylor was not certain whether the Minnesota senator would be formally invited to the convention although he "judged from newspaper reports" that the Minnesota senator would "make a talk."

FEAR RED CONTROL
The financial troubles from the unwillingness of St. Paul civic organizations to guarantee the $150 daily rental for the convention hall in the municipal auditorium, if the extremists controlled the action of the convention. It is customary here for the St. Paul Association of Public and Business Affairs to assume this burden for the convention. News of the possible withdrawal of the guarantee from the present convention Tuesday night reached C. E. Bugge, manager of the municipal auditorium and he thereupon announced that unless rental is forthcoming, he would have the convention from the hall. Mahoney announced he would be responsible for any portion of the rent not assumed by the association.

Communists hailed their victory of Tuesday as an indication of ability to put over their program for an immediate third party organization. They based their hope on the result of a vote which blocked immediate selection of standing committees and forced an adjournment until Wednesday. This vote was taken on a decision of the individual delegates, irrespective of the voting strength of the various delegations under the convention hall. Three hundred and seventy out of 454 seated delegates were counted on this vote and of these 232 voted for the Communist proposal. The negative votes numbered 145. This left the attitude of 107 accredited delegates undetermined.

The real test on this question may come late Wednesday when the party organization committee reports. A definite cleavage that will produce majority and a minority report is likely in that committee, and a vote on these would settle the question definitely.

GREEN BAY WARDENCharles Bolstrom at a Loss to Explain Action of Control Board

By Associated Press
Green Bay—When informed that the secretary of the board of control had announced Wednesday that he would not be re-elected assistant superintendent of the state reformatory for boys here, Charles Bolstrom stated:

"I am at a loss to explain the board's action, especially in view of the fact that I had been granted an increase in salary last March."

The deputy warden also said that he had been informed of the board's action last week and that he then went to Madison for an interview with the board. Except for the fact that no charges were filed, nor were complaints of any kind lodged against him, he learned little, he declared.

For the last four and one half years Mr. Bolstrom has been assistant superintendent of the reformatory. He came here from the Stillwater, Minn., penitentiary, where he had been connected with that institution. He has had 20 years of prison experience.

Leopold May
Drop Sanity
Dodge, Claim

By Associated Press
Chicago—Nathan Leopold, Jr., who with Richard Loeb, awaits trial on charges of kidnapping and killing Robert Franks, 13-year-old school boy, may not rely on insanity as a defense, he is quoted as saying. In spite of efforts of alienists examining him and Loeb to find mental defects.

"I'm not insane and I'm not going to be made to appear insane," he is quoted as saying. He would not say whether he intended to repudiate the confession he made to states attorneys resulting in his indictment.

Extensive and minute psychological examinations have been made of Leopold and Loeb, millionaires' sons, who confessed they planned the kidnapping and slaying for excitement and $10,000 ransom.

BURGLARS RAID 4
BUSINESS PLACES
AT HORTONVILLEDiamond Ring and $5 Gold Piece Only Loot Obtained
by Marauders

A diamond ring and a $5 gold piece, heirlooms left her daughter by a dying mother, constituted the loot taken by thieves in four burglaries of Hortonville business places Tuesday night.

The establishments broken into during the night were those of Dabereiner Hardware company, the Jones and Bottensok Hardware company, the Hortonville Auto company garage and the John M. Schmitt insurance office.

It was at the insurance office that the thieves took from a safe the diamond ring and the gold coin, the former property of Mr. Smith's deceased daughter, Mrs. Herman Diester. They were treasures that Mr. Smith was saving for Mrs. Diester's daughter.

Entrance at the Jones and Bottensok hardware store was effected through a basement window which had been pried open and the thieves made their exit through another basement window. Nothing was taken from this store, as far as could be ascertained.

At the Dabereiner hardware store the thieves broke through a window of the tin shop and although they opened the safe and pulled the books on the floor and also took with them the keys that were left in a cash register, they found no money.

The thieves cut through a beaver board door of the garage of the Hortonville Auto company. They opened the safe but found no money, yet overlooked about 40 or 50 cents in the cash register.

Blaine Asks Hostile
Road Officials To Quit

Madison—A virtual request for the resignation of these members of the state highway commission who are unwilling to follow his highway program was made by Governor Blaine Wednesday in a letter addressed to the commission.

The Governor's final answer to the commission was laid down in the following statement:

"Those of the highway commission who cannot wholeheartedly cooperate with me in carrying out the well-defined policies set forth before the commission know wherein their duty lies, and in the course of time, as the public's interest may require, the personnel of the commission will be treated according to the orderly processes of law and not through any newspaper controversy."

This statement is interpreted by those close to the Governor to be an invitation to the highway commissioners not in entire sympathy with the executive's program to tender their resignations. In case they fail to do so, the Governor promises legal steps to remove a portion of the commissioners at least.

The Governor further indicated that the matter of communications between himself and the commission is at an end, in the following: "I have definitely outlined a program and fixed the limits to which the highway department may go, and such determination will stand unaltered." Mr. Blaine reiterated his statements in previous letters and declared that the answers he has received from the commission are "indefinite and unsatisfactory," and "indicate evasion and inaction."

Lawrence College Confers 101

OF CUMMINGS
IS HOPELESSNorthern Police Authorities Unable to Find Trace of Bride Slayer

While the entire northland is being combed in an effort to locate George P. Cummings, alleged slayer of his bride as she slept in the tourist camping ground at Wittenberg Saturday night or early Sunday morning, authorities believe their search is becoming hopeless. Cummings is well supplied with food and money and they believe he can hide in the north woods for months until the excitement has subsided and he can leave in peace. Only a vague description of the man is available and it is probable he has abandoned the automobile which would be the only tangible evidence that he could be held on.

Considerable information concerning Cummings' past history has been obtained but it is of little use in tracing the alleged slayer. It has been learned that he left a trail of regrets in Western Canada and has a reputation as a heart breaker.

The four or five hour start which Cummings had on his pursuers, together with the fact that he is possessed of more than average cleverness, gives him an advantage in the pursuit which will be hard to overcome.

The body of Mrs. Jean Rae Cummings, the bob-haired bride of 22 years, was found in its shallow grave in the ditch shortly after 8 o'clock Sunday morning, about a half hour after her slayer had driven away. It was 11:15 o'clock that Sheriff Grosnick and District Attorney R. H. Fletcher were notified at Shawano, forty miles away. Before they reached Wittenberg, gathered the facts and obtained telephone connections with the authorities of surrounding counties, Cummings may have driven more than a hundred miles.

The dispatch from Victoria, while it brands Cummings a confidence man of luxury and a breaker of hearts, does not tell the whole story. Cummings was very little light on his past, which would aid in his arrest.

It reveals that Cummings came to Victoria from Montreal last November, claiming to be the representative of important eastern financiers. He talked grandly of the money at his command and let it be known that no commercial venture was too ambitious for his resources.

RECEIVED HEAVY MAIL
Between the time of his arrival and his departure on June 11, he received daily from thirty to forty letters from different cities throughout the United States. These, he declared with evident pride, were from possible brides with whom he was corresponding through matrimony agencies.

Last Christmas eve, Cummings distributed 150 two dollar bills indiscriminately to children on the street and before he left bought three parcels of real estate leaving $3,000 as first payments.

After he left, however, it was discovered that he had victimized a large number of business men. Including the Hudson's Bay company, of a greater sum than his "expenses" totaled, the dispatches state.

HAD WINNING APPEARANCE
Cummings' appearance inspired confidence. He was considered an unusually keen sporting man and during his stay in Victoria, succeeded in insinuating himself into several sporting organizations. Frank Slavin, erstwhile champion pugilist of the world (Continued on page 10.)

St. Paul, Minn.—The issue which has developed as so fundamental that it may wreck the efforts of the Farmer, Labor and Communist groups to get together in a national political organization.

On the one side are the avowed Communists who, while denying that they are financed or controlled by the Moscow Internationale, openly proclaim themselves as fraternizing with it in the same sense that the Chamber of Commerce of the United States is affiliated with the International Chamber of Commerce and European business organizations. On the other side are the radicals who used to be long to the Socialist party and who want socialization of industry and many other drastic reforms, but who prefer to get it by programs and methods similar to the British Labor party.

ACCIDENT, VERDICT
IN OSHKOSH DEATHBronchial Pneumonia Resulted from Injuries to Asylum
Patient

By Associated Press
Oshkosh—William Bartlett came to his death from injuries accidentally received, which produced bronchial pneumonia.

That was the verdict of the coroner's jury, called by the district attorney at the request of Dr. Adin Sherman, superintendent of the Northern hospital for the insane, to find out by what means the aged resident of Lanark, Portage co., sustained two broken ribs while a patient at that institution.

The inquest was started the day following the death and the assistant district attorney, was called upon to view the remains before they were turned over to the undertaker. A jury was summoned by N. P. Christensen, justice. The jury viewed the remains and Tuesday testimony was taken and a verdict rendered as stated. There was nothing in the testimony to show that Bartlett had been roughly used and the only other cause that could be attributed was that, in falling, when he arose from his bed, the aged man struck his side against a chair or the side of the iron bed.

YOSHIDA RUSHES TO REPLACE HANIHARA

By Associated Press
Tokyo—Ambassador Iwano Yoshida, the newly appointed counselor of the embassy at Washington, will sail from Yokohama for the United States on June 21, on the Steamer Empress of Australia, his departure having been expedited that he may take up the embassy's work as chargé d'affaires during the absence of an ambassador as soon as possible.

Mr. Yoshida will have charge of the embassy pending the appointment and arrival of a successor to the retiring ambassador, Hanihara, who resigned recently. Mr. Hanihara, it is understood here, will leave Washington about July 11.

Mr. Yoshida formerly was counselor of the legation at Peking.

he talks as if he too would decline to be a candidate on an out-and-out Communist platform.

It is easy to smile at the various delegates who are in attendance here—their uncouth appearance, their secret conferences and their vagaries. But sneers and smiles will not crush the movement nor keep it from extreme programs. Most of the men here are the old-time soap-box orators who have the courage of their convictions. Underneath it all, however, they are not as keen for the soviet system as they appear to be on the surface. They have the same old self-interest, the same political maneuvering which are characteristic of all political conventions.

Undoubtedly there is a good deal of foreign influence here. The example of the British Labor party is held up constantly as are the group tactics of the French Socialists. Schemes of representation are proposed here which differ materially from the methods of the Republican or Democratic parties.

LABOR CHIEFS ARE MISSING
It is significant that there are no labor leaders of national prominence here. The American Federation of Labor is not represented. Samuel Gompers has never accepted the principle of a labor party as a political instrumentality and that is one of the reasons why no matter what is done here, it will still represent a minority of the laboring men in the country. There are some radical leaders in attendance, like Alexander Howatt of Kansas, William Z. Foster of steel strike fame, and Duncan MacDonald of Illinois, but on the whole the large farm bodies and the biggest labor groups have ignored this convention.

Whom do the delegates represent? Mostly minorities in all the Labor and Farmer organizations, but they hope in time to gain power over their conservative brethren by an attractive program that will pull the rank and file from their present leaders. Some of the men are no doubt ambitious to gain control of national Labor organizations for their own purposes. Some of them are "parlor Socialists" interested in the theory of radicalism, and some of them are honestly convinced that with the turn of the tide in Europe there may be an era of extreme radicalism on this side. But the convention is called for the most part on hope rather than the strength of constituent organizations.

SENATE COMMITTEE
WATCHES CAMPAIGNHeadquarters Planned at Chicago to Keep Check in Expenditures

Washington, D. C.—The senate committee authorized to investigate campaign contributions and expenditures this year plans to establish headquarters in Chicago and to keep a continuous check on these during the active period of the campaign when it will meet at the request of any of its five members.

After selecting Senator Borah, Republican of Idaho, as chairman, the committee at an organization meeting Tuesday, decided to call on party campaign managers for reports every ten days on expenditures and resources of funds, including the names of contributors. It was further decided that the committee would seek voluntary information on plans for raising funds and the names of those expected to contribute, although Chairman Borah explained there was no authority to compel such reports.

Although the committee will be called together as soon as the campaign gets actively under way, Chairman Borah said it was unlikely there would be any occasion for public hearings before the latter part of August.

C. W. Gilkey Is Commencement Speaker.

Ninety-four bachelors of arts degrees were granted by Lawrence college at the annual commencement exercises at Lawrence Memorial chapel on Wednesday. The degree of Doctor of Divinity was bestowed upon the Rev. Samuel Chadwick of England, noted author and scholar who represented the English Wesleyan Methodist church at the Methodist conference in Springfield this spring and who made the fraternal address. Three masters' degrees and three degrees in music were given, making a total of 101 degrees.

That it is not the facts, figures formulae which one learns in college and so rapidly forgets that makes a college career worthwhile but that it is the point of view and the things which come from atmosphere of the four years of college which are lasting, was the point made by the commencement speaker, the Rev. Charles W. Gilkey, pastor of the Hyde Park Methodist church of Chicago. The speaker pointed to the two kinds of education, that which is finished when the degree is won because there is no teacher to continue the demand that lessons be learned and that which is only begun because the person who has it continues to teach himself.

PLANTZ IN CHARGE
Dr. Samuel Plantz was in charge of the program and gave his annual address to the students. Scripture was read by Dean Wilson S. Naylor and the prayer was offered by Dr. J. H. Tippet. Musical selections were given by Prof. Percy Fullinwider and by Dean Carl J. Waterman. LaVahn Maesch played the organ prelude and accompanied the violin and vocal numbers.

Gilkey likened the process of life, but especially of education, to that of the tree which gets some of its growth from the soil but the pure carbon which is left after the tree has been fired is that which the tree gets from the invisible atmosphere. He said part of the value of a college education came from books and classes but the point of view, the purpose of life and the determination for service come from the atmosphere in which the students live.

Bachelors of arts degrees summum cum laude were given to the Misses Alice Lyons, Dorothy Lymer and Rex Rendall; magna cum laude to Ralph Culnan, Ina Dunbar, Beulah Larson, Norton Muggerson, Muriel Miller and Laura Slevett; and cum laude to Ellen Kinsman, Jennifer Kremerick, Frances Meserole, Elbert Smith, Phyllis Symmonds, Hazel Webster and Fay Rogers.

The degree of bachelor of arts was given to Maurice Arverson, Ruth Babler, Jane Baldwin, Einar Bank, Martha Brose, Myra Buchmann, Pauline Burbank, William O. M'Adoo Opens Campaign
On Arrival In New York

By Associated Press
New York—The campaign of William G. McAdoo for the Democratic nomination for president enters on its final phase with his arrival from Los Angeles Wednesday to take advantage of his forces. Several thousand, it is anticipated, will be at the depot to greet Mr. McAdoo.

National committeemen and delegates already in town are displaying a decided sentiment in favor of Senator Thomas J. Walsh of Montana, leader of the oil lease investigation, as permanent chairman of the convention. It is generally agreed that inasmuch as the oil scandals are virtually certain to be one of the chief issues of the campaign, it would be a wise move to capitalize the Montana senator's nationally known connection with the investigations. There is also the feeling that it behooves the party to show Walsh its appreciation of his efforts.

Members of the Democratic national committee let it be known Tuesday night that Homer S. Cummings,

In spite of threatening weather, a large number of people were in Appleton stores on Wednesday to take advantage of the "Dollar Day" bargains offered by 35 progressive merchants. The fact that a large number of stores in which almost everything needed in the home is sold, are cooperating in this sale makes it possible for buyers to purchase almost everything they need in one shopping trip.

Appleton people quite generally adopted the suggestion that they do their shopping early in order to avoid the rush of the afternoon when shoppers from the surrounding territory flocked into the city.

The sale will be continued on Thursday, inasmuch as merchants have placed enormous stocks on their bargain counters for this sale, there will be a lot of bargains for shoppers who visit the stores tomorrow.

Magnate's Son

Detroit—Police have obtained fingerprints of all employees in the house and about the grounds of the residence of Edsel B. Ford, president of the Ford Motor Co., in connection with the robbery of $100,000 worth of jewelry Saturday night. The robbery was made public late Tuesday by police. Clear fingerprints were left by the thief, according to the police.

The jewels, in a silver case, included a pearl necklace of 205 graded pearls with a platinum clasp set with a one carat diamond, valued at $67,000; a pearl necklace of 103 graded pearls with a platinum clasp set with a one half carat diamond, valued at $22,000; Mrs. Ford's wedding ring, a platinum band of scroll design; a guard ring encrusted with one-eighth carat diamonds, and a gold octagonal clock.

The fact that a bathroom window near the bedroom was found open gave rise to the belief at first that the thief had climbed a canopy and entered through this window.

WIFE OF SUSPECTED MAN
Hat Found in Automobile Identified As That of Her Present Husband

Chicago police, hot on the trail of the bandits who robbed a Chicago Milwaukee and St. Paul mail train of about $3,000,000 near Chicago last Thursday night, arrested Mrs. Louise Newton, New London, Wis., on Tuesday when she attempted to take $20,000 from a safe deposit box rented to James Watson, one of the men now for the robbery. Watson was taken into custody several days ago. He told the police that Mrs. Newton was taking the money from the bank to pay a gambler who was interested in liquor deals.

Mrs. Newton, according to New London police, is about 33 years of age and had made her home away from New London for about 15 years. She was in New London most of this spring, however, and left only a few days ago. She is said to have been a Miss Louise Draefke before her marriage. Police at New London are inclined to believe that James Watson is her present husband.

She was known as a Miss Mead of Milwaukee, when placed under arrest. It is understood here that her identity was learned through police questioning.

A hat found in one of the automobiles alleged to have been abandoned by the train robbers has been traced to Watson.

Chicago—Recovery of most of the $3,000,000 loot taken by bandits in a holdup last Thursday night of a Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul mail train near here, is expected Wednesday by police and postal inspectors searching for three men, said to be named in evidence unearthed by the investigators.

Non-negotiable securities valued at $600,000, $500,000 in $5 bills, and 61 registered mail pouches taken in the holdup have been recovered, and eight men and two women are in custody. Enough evidence has been obtained to justify charging all the men with the robbery and the women with accessories according to Chief Collins and Chief Hughes, directing the police investigation.

TAKE LIBERTY BONDS
A checkup of the pouches recovered indicates that the robbers took one package containing $500,000 in Liberty bonds shipped from a New York bank to St. Paul. The package contained 500 bonds. More than $500,000 in Liberty bonds of smaller denominations was obtained from other packages and approximately $100,000 in currency. It was stated after an examination of the slit and rifled mail bags. The $500,000 parcel of $5 bills was evidently overlooked.

Little importance was attached by federal officers to the arrest of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Horton and Frank Horton, proprietor of a roadhouse near where the pouches were found. J. H. Wayne, one of the suspects, found with five bullet wounds and thought shot during the holdup, was reported dying in a hospital.

Thirty cows of the association produced more than 40 pounds of butterfat each, and four produced more than 50 pounds. The herd of Arnold Stephant held the high herd average for the last three months. In the report published May 8, Guy Daniels' herd of 40-pound producing cows was unintentionally omitted. Three of his cows produced more than 50 pounds during the month ending April 20. He also had the second highest cow for the month.

The production of LaVern Brusewitz's cow last month was 51.7 pounds of butterfat and 1,230 pounds of milk testing at 4.2 per cent. Another of his cows produced 51.2 pounds of butterfat. The second highest cow of the month was a grade Guernsey of Guy Daniels which produced 51.6 pounds of butterfat and 1,323 pounds of milk testing at 3.9 per cent.

BOARDS OF REVIEW MEET ON JUNE 30

Boards of review of the various towns and villages throughout the county will meet on Monday, June 30, according to law, to examine the assessments made of real and personal properties and to listen to claims for adjustments. Some of the boards may adjourn until a later date.

This will be the only opportunity for property owners to protect their assessments. The amounts of their assessments may be ascertained at these meetings and property owners may compare the assessed valuation with that of their neighbors to see if it is equitable. No tax rebates can be claimed on the basis of unfair assessment, unless the property owners affected appear at the meeting to protest.

The board of equalization in the city of Appleton will not meet until Monday, July 7, and even then it is expected to adjourn for two weeks, as the city assessments will not be completed until then.

HORTONVILLE MAN IS FREED BY JURY

After nearly three hours of deliberation the jury that was trying the case Monday of the State of Wisconsin vs. John Bauernfeind of Hortonville who was charged with possession of illicit liquor, rendered a verdict of not guilty. Bauernfeind conducts a soft drink parlor at Hortonville which was raided by state prohibition officers several weeks ago. He is the second man recently to be acquitted by a jury of liquor charges.

The moonshine case against William Eisch, Second-ave saloonkeeper, was to be taken up the same day as that of the Bauernfeind trial, but the case has been held open. His attorneys intend to move for a dismissal of the complaint.

GRADUATES TALK OVER OLD TIMES AT ALUMNI MEET

Delbert G. Lean, '01, Elected
President of Lawrence
Alumni Association

Delbert G. Lean of the class of 1901 was the guest of honor on alumni day at Lawrence college on Tuesday. He was elected honorary president of the Lawrence Alumni association and was the principal speaker at the annual alumni banquet on Tuesday evening. Mr. Lean after leaving Lawrence college was graduated from the Emerson college of oratory at Boston and took graduate work at Harvard. He was leader for three years with the White League bureau of Boston and became professor of public speaking at the University of Wooster in 1908. He is considered an authority on public speaking.

Because of the rain, a smaller group than usual attended the annual luncheon at Brookway hall Tuesday noon. The luncheon was followed by the annual business meeting at which there was considerable discussion of the annual fees of the organization. Reports were given by the officers with the exception of the editor of the Lawrence Alumni.

HONOR FOR LIBRARIAN

Mrs. Wilson S. Naylor gave an appreciation of the work of Miss Zella Anne Smith, telling of her life of service, love, friendship and prayer. The Miss Smith, who had served so many generations of Lawrentians gave half of her entire estate to the college which she loved made a profound impression on her friends and fellow Lawrentians. A committee will be appointed from the association to confer with the board of trustees executive committee on a fitting memorial to Miss Smith to be placed in the college library. The alumni discussed a bronze tablet while the trustees recommended on Monday that a portrait be placed in the library. It is possible that both will be secured.

A large number of the alumni went to Peabody hall to attend the recital given by the public speaking department of the college at Peabody hall on Tuesday afternoon. The program was excellently given by the public speaking students.

RECALL OLD TIMES

Earl C. Macinnis of Jefferson of the class of 1916 was the toastmaster at the banquet at Russell Sage dormitory in the evening. Mr. Macinnis "entered" Lawrence as a baby when his father was studying for the ministry here and he knew several generations of Lawrentians. He had stories to tell on most of the speakers and the speakers reciprocated by telling stories about "those Macinnis kids," both of whom have graduated from their fathers Alma Mater and both of whom were present at the banquet. Constance Johnston Schneider of the class of 1910 welcomed the graduating class to the alumni association and the response was made by Russell Flom, president of the outgoing class. Harland C. Logan of the class of 1899

GREENVILLE MAN HITS STREET CAR

A Ford touring car was damaged in a collision with an east bound Appleton Junction street car Tuesday afternoon on College-ave, but no one was injured. The car was driven by Walter Knack of Greenville, and was backed into the street car, breaking the left front wheel, springing the axle and breaking the left front fender on the automobile, but doing no damage to the street car. The accident occurred at 4 o'clock Tuesday afternoon in front of Eberhardt & Co.'s second hand store, 834 College-ave.

CAPT. KROMER OFFICIATES AT FIREMEN'S CARNIVAL

Captain Jacob Kromer of the Appleton fire department officiated as timekeeper at the competitive events held at the Eastern Wisconsin Firemen's association annual convention and picnic at Brillion, Wis. This is an organization of volunteer companies, but it has been customary to ask Appleton fire officers to assist in directing the events.

The companies from Brillion, Hilbert, Kiel, Kohler, New Holstein, Sheboygan Falls and Plymouth took part although more cities are identified with the association.

RIDES MOTORCYCLE 900 MILES TO SUMMER JOB

Julius O. Johnson, son of Oscar F. Johnson, 91 Mason-st., has just completed a 900 mile motorcycle trip to Newcastile, Pa., where he is to be employed during the remainder of the summer, by Greunke Brothers, who have the contract for four miles of concrete pavement. He left Appleton Thursday morning and reached Elk-hart, Ind. the first night and Youngstown, Ohio, the second night. He reached his destination early Saturday morning.

spoke on Lawrence 25 years ago. Dr. J. S. Reeve told of how the Lawrence campus looked 40 years ago.

FLANZ GOT EVEN

Mr. Lean told of things that had happened when he was in school including the time when the freshmen stole the junior caps and put them on the decorations of the main hall dome. Each of the five boys who did the deed were fined $3 apiece and paid Dr. Flantz 300 pennies each, but the joke was really on Lean. He went into the office of the college to get $5 changed and when Dr. Flantz heard him ask for change, he came out with what he said was 500 pennies. Mr. Lean said he remembered distinctly that he never had the nerve to count the pennies. The speaker then read a reading from Mr. Dooley, which was highly entertaining.

Special Meeting
There will be a special meeting at the Salvation Army Wednesday evening when Capt. Ryan of the Oakkosh corps and some of his comrades will be here. The public has been invited to attend according to an announcement made by Edward Shaw, officer in charge.

ON THE SCREEN

NEW INCE DRAMA POWERFUL IN BIG THEME AND ACTING

Thomas H. Ince, whose pictures invariably possess such powerful themes and rapid-fire action that they have been responsible for the coining of the phrase: "The Ince Punch," has delivered again. "The Marriage Cheat," a First National picture, which closes its engagement at the Elite Theatre tonight, contains that "punch" in generous measure, and in addition relates one of the most appealing romances we have ever seen flashed on the silver sheet. "The Marriage Cheat" is a romance of the South Sea Islands, directed by John Griffith Wray from the story by Frank R. Adams. In the cast are Percy Marmont, Leatrice Joy, Adolphe Menjou, Laska Winter, Henry Barrows and J. P. Lackney.

With such a romantic background as the South Sea Isles, where the picture was actually filmed, Director Wray has fashioned a film that possesses an appeal to all types of motion picture lovers. There are shivery thrills galore, including the leaping of the heroine into the sea from a yacht and the wrecking of a big liner in a typhoon. There are marvelous scenic shots of the noted islands; there are tender scenes of love, poignant scenes of pathos.

Limbers 'Em Up Joint-Ease

It's for joint troubles in ankle, knee, hip, elbow, shoulder, knuckles or spine—whether rheumatic or not.

It limbers them up, reduces the swelling, chases out the pain and inflammation—when Joint-Ease goes in joint agony goes out—no time wasted. But lately thousands of people have discovered that it's also supremely good for quick relief in lumbago, neuralgia and neuritis.

Joint-Ease is an active emollient that soaks in almost instantly—and remember when Joint-Ease gets in joint troubles get out—quick—a tube 60 cents. Volgt's Drug Store sells lots of Joint-Ease. adv.

lowers the attention to lag for a moment, the story moves swiftly and smoothly, contrasting civilization with savagery, and it is acted with a fidelity that is noteworthy.

Here is a picture we can recommend without reservation as supreme entertainment.

credible depiction of a New England idyll that holds attention because of its quaint humor and the character types that are exceedingly well done.

The story of Mary Ainslie, who had waited thirty years for her fiancé, always keeping a light burning in the window to guide him home. His son, by another woman, comes to spend his vacation in the New England village. The resemblance is so startling that when she learns that he is the son of her old fiancé, she is overcome and falls in a faint. The son has fallen in love with Miss Ainslie's youthful comrade, and she upon her deathbed bequeaths to Carl and Ruth the happy romance that had been denied her. Besides, the leading players, the balance of the cast of Victor Potel, Zella Ingraham, Lillian Elliott and James Corrigan extract every iota of humor from their parts. Director Ingraham has faithfully pictured the atmosphere of the serene New England village, and in doing so has produced a picture that really does possess heart interest.

ONLY 2 WEEKS LEFT TO GET IN CLAIMS FOR TAX REDUCTION

Property Owners Throw Away
Good Money If They Neglect Filing

Home owners have less than two weeks in which to file their affidavits for the $500 homestead exemption allowed by law for the time allowed by law will expire on July 1. Since it will be impossible for the city assessor to complete his work by that time and deliver the affidavits at the various homes, residents owning their own homes are advised by Mr. Rule to obtain the blanks from the city clerk. The affidavits may be signed and sworn to before the assessor, city clerk, justice of the peace, or any notary public.

HOME OWNERS EXEMPT

Some neglect to file the affidavit because they believe the exemption applies only to the original owners of the homestead. Any house is a homestead when it is occupied by the owner, Mr. Rule says. Even when the title to the home is not clear, or the property is held under a land contract or a long term lease, the exemption is available, if the occupant pays the taxes.

STIMSON'S SEALYHAM TERRIER IS POISONED

A valuable Sealyham terrier belonging to J. E. H. Stimson, 231 Openchast, is the latest victim of the first ward dog poisoner. Mr. Stimson found the body on his lawn Monday morning. More than half a dozen dogs have been poisoned in that part of the city within the last two weeks.

Write Haskin About Your Claim For Soldier Bonus

There are in Appleton and in the area in which the Post-Crescent largely circulates, between 2,500 and 3,000 persons eligible to receive the soldier bonus recently voted by congress. No doubt there are among these people several hundred who have little or no knowledge of the provisions of the act nor the steps necessary to obtain an adjustment of their claims.

The Post-Crescent has arranged with Frederic J. Haskin, who conducts its Washington, D. C., information bureau, to answer all questions relative to the bonus act and its application coming from Post-Crescent readers. Mr. Haskin's large staff will be at the disposal of Post-Crescent readers who desire information concerning the law.

All communications should be addressed to the Post-Crescent Information Bureau, Frederic J. Haskin director, Washington, D. C. Readers are cautioned not to send their inquiries to the Post-Crescent in Appleton. Readers must enclose two cents in stamps for return postage.

Questions should be written plainly and briefly stated. A personal reply from the bureau will be received in the shortest possible time. This information service should be of great benefit to World War veterans who are eligible to receive the bonus and Post-Crescent readers are urged to make the widest use of the opportunity.

DAELKE AGAIN IN RACE FOR SHERIFF

Otto Daelke, town of Center farmer, is among the latest candidates for county sheriff to take out nomination papers and place them in circulation among the voters of the various precincts. Mr. Daelke was a candidate for the Republican nomination two years ago, but otherwise has not been identified with county politics.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVORS HOLD PICNIC AT KAUKAUNA

A rally of all Christian Endeavor societies of the Green Bay district, which extends from Appleton to Marinette, has been planned for June 26. The program probably will include songs, a service and inspirational address and a picnic luncheon. Because of the distance, it is probable that only societies between Appleton and Green Bay will attend the picnic, which is to be held near Kaukauna.

SCOUTS MAY TAKE HIKES TO WOODS

Keicher Is Planning Program to Take Place of Usual Camp for This Year

Boy scouts of Appleton will not have their summer camp this year as in the past, due to organization of activities, but they will not be deprived of a taste of camp life, nevertheless.

Paul O. Keicher, the newly appointed Fox river valley scout executive, declares that it is too late now to organize a camp for all of the boys as in the past, but he hopes to plan hikes of three or four days each to some of the choice camping places in the northern part of the state. He will take the boys in small groups on these trips, using the scout truck for this purpose and they will be allowed to camp out for several nights.

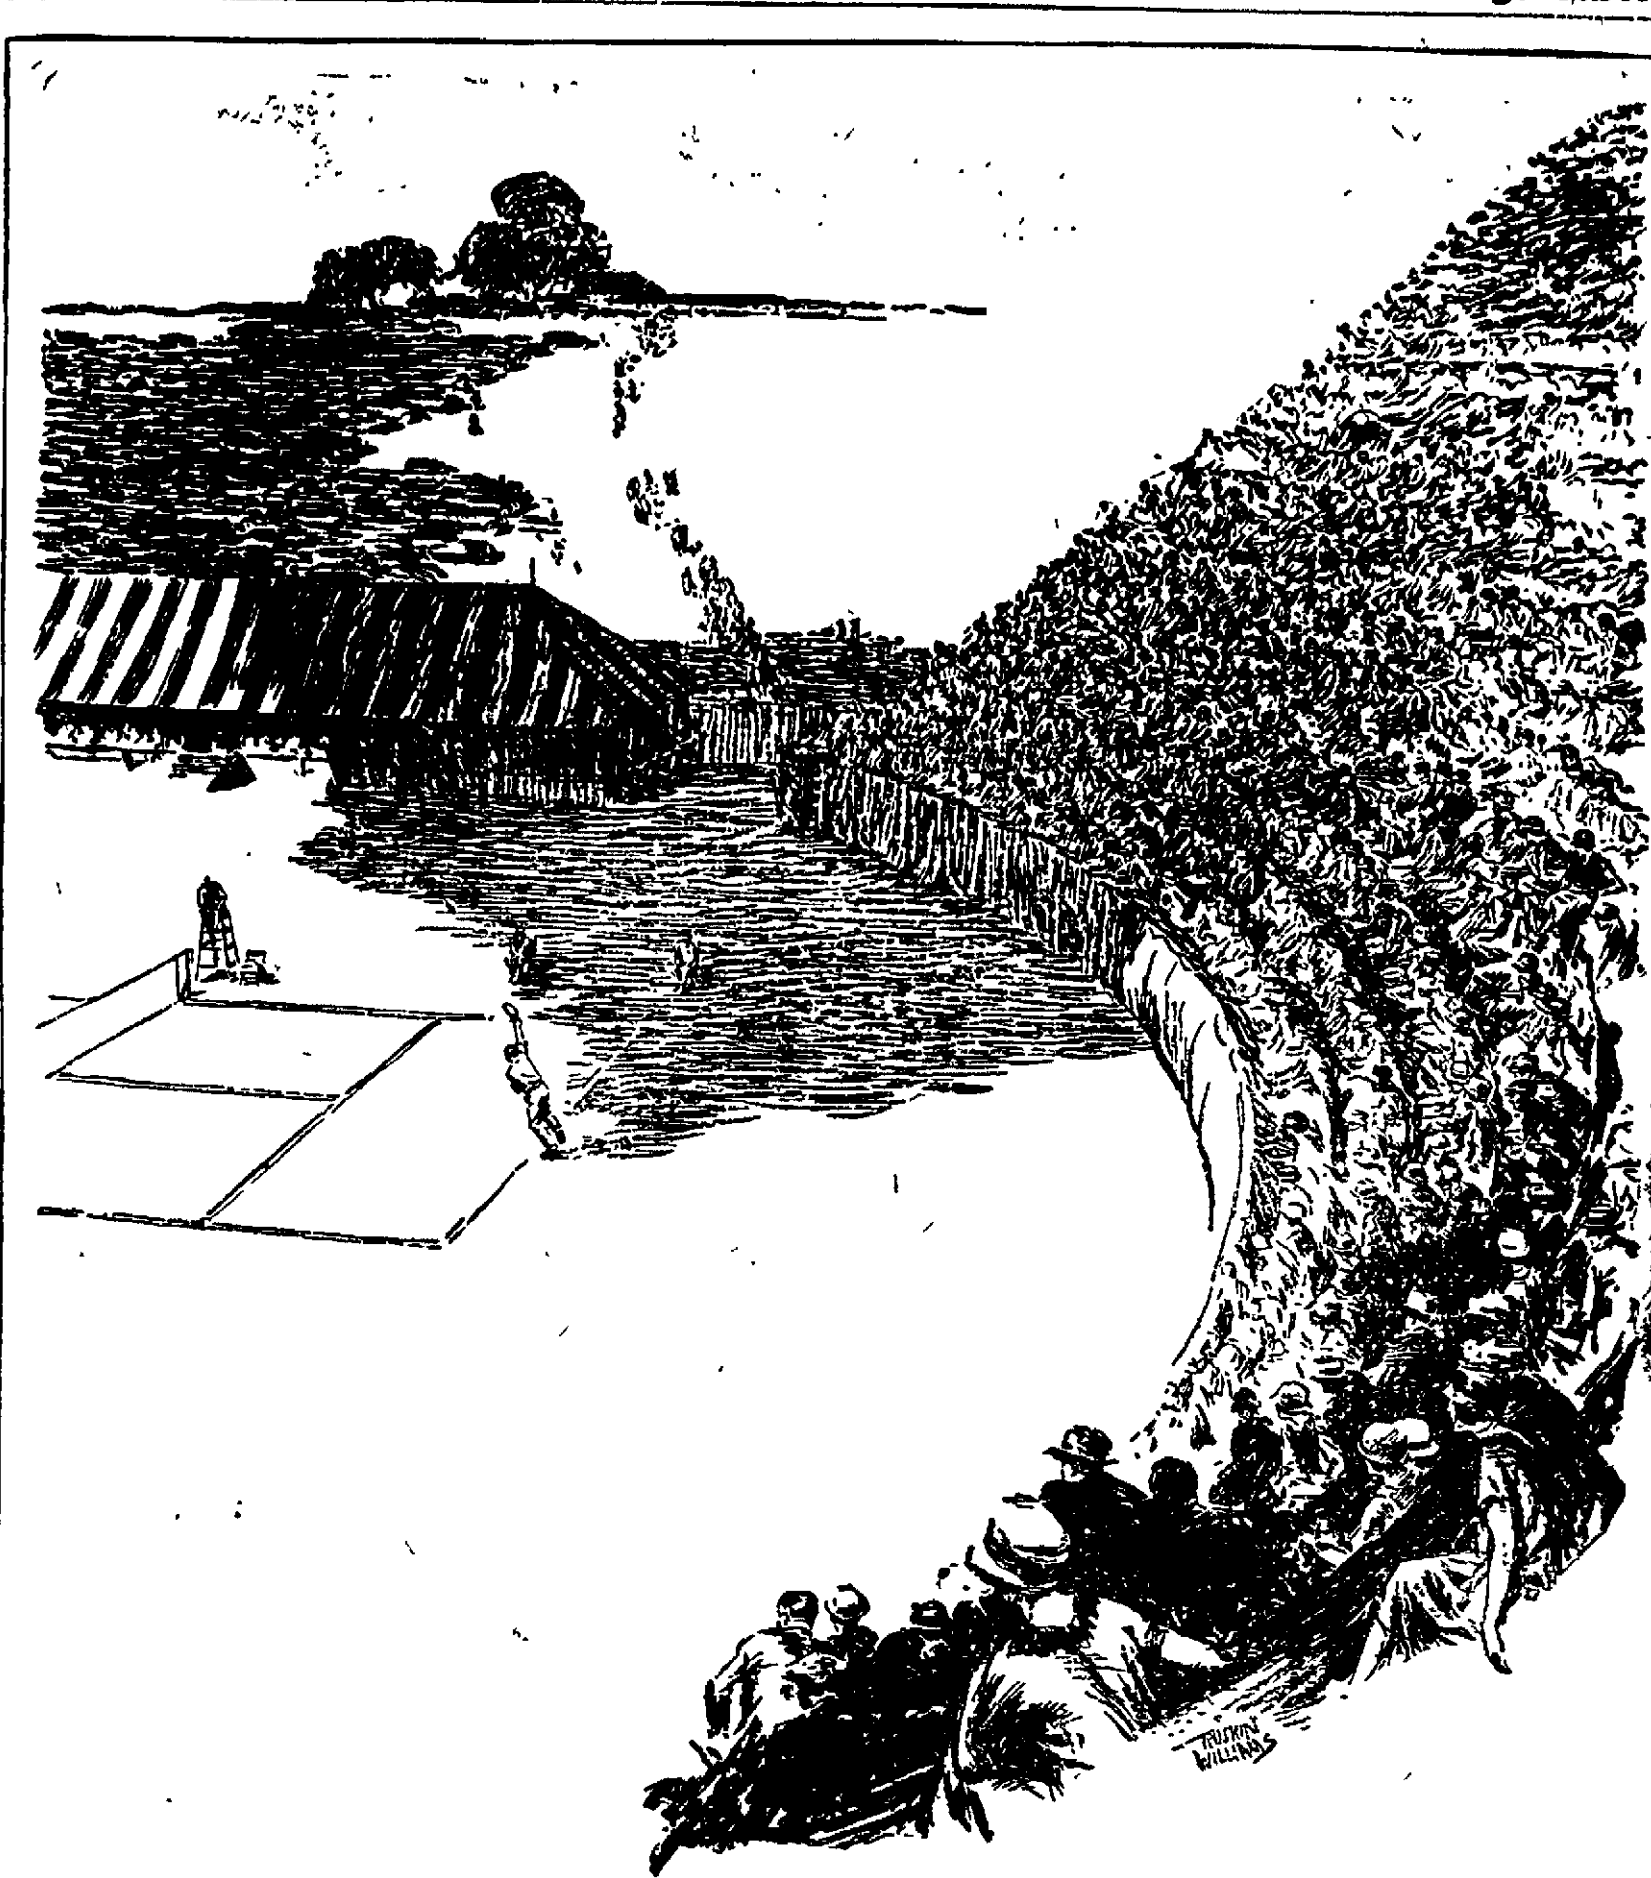

Mr. Keicher is at his office daily in the chamber of commerce room, trying to get the valley boy scout organization back into efficient shape so the troops can be supervised and their activities and growth resumed.

Such popularity must be deserved

WHETHER it's tennis or cigarettes or anything else, popularity is no stroke of luck. No champion ever held his laurels except by making good. No cigarette ever held popular favor except by deserving it.

The popularity of Chesterfields is an outstanding example. For months now they have been drawing over 1000 smokers a day away from other cigarettes. Surely this is proof of their quality and good taste.

FUNDAMENTALLY, the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) is a service organization. Directors, employees, and shareholders are moved by one ambition—to make this Company great in its ability to serve the community.

It was the furtherance of this ambition which caused the Management to take steps to secure a wide distribution of shares in this Company. To do this it was necessary to get the price per share down to a point where investors of moderate means would find the stock attractive. This was accomplished by distributing the working surplus among the shareholders, as a stock dividend, and reducing the par value from $100 to $25.

Today the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) is owned by 46,016 shareholders—12,135 of whom are employees, and 13,253 are women—no single shareholder owns as much as 6% of the total stock and the price per share at this writing is $57.00.

Among the larger shareholders are many educational and philanthropic institutions who depend upon the dividends derived from their holding in this Company to carry on certain phases of their work.

For example, we cite the Rockefeller Foundation and the General Educational Board whose activities extend to all parts of the world, bettering the living conditions for millions, lessening the burdens of the afflicted, enlightening the youth, and expanding the educational facilities of the world.

The service rendered to society by the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) is of a broad and varied nature. Not only does it supply the thirty million people of ten Middle Western states with petroleum products of superior quality in such a way as to have gained their confidence, respect and esteem, but the profits accruing to the shareholders from the operations of this Company are used in large part for the welfare of all the people and to make the world a better place in which to live.

HERRIOT AND FRANCE

It was known a month ago that Edouard Herriot would succeed Poincare as premier of France. He is the leader of the Radical-Socialist party, which has the largest membership in the new chamber of deputies. It was, therefore, inevitable that he should be called by the new president to take charge of the government. Herriot has risen from obscurity to the place of power he now occupies. He was the son of a Parisian baker and orphaned when a small boy.

He is the direct antithesis of the man he succeeds. Poincare, shrewd, tenacious lawyer, with the soul of a bureaucrat, is what would be called in the United States "hard boiled." Closely identified with the great industrialists of France he represented a policy of dollars and harsh nationalism. Herriot is described as having a poetic temperament, a broad easy-going professor, but as an intense and relentless executive when roused. He is essentially human, generous, broad in his sympathies. Poincare all but brought France to ruin. Herriot is the man that can save France. He is the leader best calculated to solve the reparations difficulties in a manner that will afford the maximum hope of friendly relations between France and Germany in the future. Herriot believes in inter-allied unity, and his first step will be to go to Great Britain and confer with Ramsay MacDonald on a policy of accord. He is for the Dawes commission plan of settlement and is a strong believer in the League of Nations. He wants Germany in the League and he wants the League to take the offensive for international justice and generosity.

Herriot is not a socialist as we understand socialism in this country, but is much like MacDonald of Great Britain, an advanced type of Liberal. His is the kind of leadership that France and all Europe need today. There will be no mailed fist back of what Herriot says or does. He will keep France strong enough to defend herself, but will not load her down with militarism. He will invite an amicable understanding with Germany if such a thing is possible. He will work in concert with the British prime minister, and these two great democrats will, unless we are greatly mistaken, succeed through their joint efforts in turning Europe from ways of self-destruction to restored peace and prosperity. His accession to power is quite as fortunate as was that of MacDonald in England.

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

Some persons have an inflexible attitude of mind. They cannot alter that attitude either for the sake of principle or consistency. They are uncompromising in their judgments and usually have pronounced opinions which are prejudiced or egotistical. Such persons are easy victims of partisan politics. Once their alignment with a certain party is established they will swallow practically anything that party does, will vigorously defend it from attack and will even condone its shortcomings. That is why we have Republicans who have never voted a Democratic ticket and vice versa. It is why we have the extreme prohibitionists, and so on.

This newspaper was a vigorous supporter of Woodrow Wilson and his administration. It was an equally vigorous supporter of Mr. Wilson's plan for a league of nations, believing then, as it does now, that the world league with America as a member, would be an effective agency for peace. Because of this support, Republicans who make a fetish of their politics class the Post-Crescent as a Democratic newspaper.

The fundamental domestic policies of Mr. Wilson have long since been vindicated and upheld. The same is true of his foreign policies, and today we witness a pronounced tendency on the part of the Republican party in the direction, even though circuitous, of these precise policies.

The Post-Crescent supported Mr. Harding for the presidency, but expressed its disappointment over his nomination. It severely criticized the appointment of Mr. Daugherty for attorney-general and other members of the cabinet whose political reputations have long since been shattered. It criticized Mr. Harding for the very weaknesses which indirectly brought a heavy cloud upon his administration. It had opposed Albert Fall because of his devious politics and his evident desire to force intervention in Mexico for the benefit of corporate interests of this country. For these opinions The Post-Crescent was held by some discontented Republicans to be a Democratic newspaper.

We have done everything in our power to expose the unscrupulous politics of Henry Cabot Lodge and the special interest affiliations of the bourbon element in the Republican party. We have done what we could to make clear the demagoguery of its self-seeking politicians. For this we are held to be a Democratic newspaper.

Hide-bound Republicans denounce practically everything Mr. Wilson said or did. Mr. Harding was an all-right president because he was a Republican, likewise his cabinet. Senator Lodge was an oracle for the same reason. Let us look at the record a little more closely. The Federal Reserve system, the eight-hour day, the extraordinary record of America in the war, the permanent court of International justice—these are enough to cite in behalf of Mr. Wilson. Of Mr. Harding's pathetic and unfortunate administration, what is there to tell? And where are Fall and Daugherty and Denby? Where is Senator Lodge? Why is General Dawes on the Republican ticket?

The major criticisms we have passed upon the Republican party have been proven to be right and just criticisms, and similarly of the Democratic party. We are not a Democratic newspaper because we refuse to accept exploitation of the consumer through an excessive and oppressive tariff. Neither are we a Republican newspaper because we refused to enthuse over the nomination over Mr. Cox by the Democrats, or because we shall in all probability support Mr. Coolidge for president this year.

The Post-Crescent is an independent newspaper. It believes in party government, but it refuses to accept the abuses and evils that party government often fosters. The differences that we used to know between the two great parties have disappeared. The various groups within the Republican party today are much farther apart than the Republicans and Democrats ever were. The chief party differences in America are social rather than political.

This newspaper is conservative in its political views and liberal in its social and economic views. When Republican doctrine can be clearly discerned we sometimes find ourselves in accord with that doctrine, and sometimes, with the policies and work of the Democratic party. This is the function and the privilege of a truly independent newspaper. It is the only helpful way to society and the only square way to the newspaper's readers.

TODAY'S POEM

By HAL COCHRAN

GENERAL DELIVERY

At the postoffice window in any old town where strangers inquire for their mail, you always can tell, by a smile or a frown, whether hopes come as wanted, or fall.
A youth saunters up in a nervous-like way, and he's handed a letter from dad. It's one he's been waiting for many a day. There's a check. It's no wonder he's glad.
A little old lady breaks out into smile as her heart has occasion for fun. She stood in the line and she waited a while—then they gave her some mail from her son.
A girl in her teens who is flashy and fair will suddenly register frown. She asked for her mail but she found nothing there from a sweetheart in some other town.
And thus, at the General Delivery, all day, folks' spirits go up or go down. The ones who are always affected that way are the ones who are strangers in town.

Health Talks

BY WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.
Noted Physician And Author

Dr. Brady will answer all signed letters pertaining to health. Writers' names are never printed. Only inquiries of a general interest are answered in this column, but all letters will be answered by mail if written in ink and a stamped, self-addressed envelope is enclosed. Requests for diagnosis or treatment of individual cases cannot be considered. Address Dr. William Brady, in care of this paper.

IODINE IN TABLE SALT

A year or so ago I threw all caution, judgment and professional propriety to the winds and printed here a formula for a kind of old age procrastrinator, a medicinal iodine ration which I had lifted from a contribution in the New York Medical Journal by Dr. Adoniram J. Quimby, who, in turn, had brushed everything aside and opined that the daily consumption of a wee speck of iodine as in the formula he gave would postpone hardening of the arteries, graying of the hair and premature loss of ginger and ambition. Dr. Quimby praised his iodine mixture as a remedy for the business man, the w. k. tired business man who has tried a "rest" or a "vacation" without recovering his old time pep. He urged it for the condition called "staleness." So I grabbed the recipe while it was hot and rushed it into this column, and do you now, the response was something startling. I never could have believed so many people want to stay young and not grow gray. The unfortunate part of it was that so many old persons whose eyesight and understanding were not what they once had been, jumped to the conclusion that I had found a prescription to cure old age, a simple rejuvenator one could "mix for himself" in short the thing which Ponce de Leon couldn't find. In spite of all that I haven't changed my mind about the value of a suitable iodine ration for keeping one in the game. My faith in the value of iodine as a food medicine is quite as firm as it was when I broadcast Dr. Quimby's formula. But I want to revoke the formula now. In fact I did revoke it quite a while ago, answering all requests for it with the suggestion that ordinary tincture of iodine (iodine is simplified spelling) in homeopathic doses and the more liberal use of sea foods in the diet would answer the requirements. To make doubly sure of this I do now solemnly revoke the formula, prescription or recipe which I ascribed to Dr. Adoniram J. Quimby in the article I published here Friday, Feb. 23, 1923, under the title "Get Your Iodine." Dr. Quimby's formula is still as good as ever, and I am only revoking it for the reason you can now obtain iodine in the right form to meet the requirements of the body in the table salt which everybody uses in seasoning and cooking food.
Some such salt was proposed several years ago by Dr. Emory R. Hayhurst, professor of hygiene in Ohio State University. The apparently increasing prevalence of goitre prompted the Michigan State Medical society, the Michigan state board of health and the West Virginia state board of health and other medical societies and health authorities, to urge manufacturers to add a table salt containing the proper infinitesimal quantity of iodine to contain and prevent goitre. Such a salt is now procurable from good grocers anywhere, at the usual price of free running salt. It contains 0.02 per cent of sodium iodide, and tastes and looks like ordinary salt. I recommend such salt as an excellent means of providing the necessary iodine ration.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Some Risk of Habit

Please tell me how to cure constipation. I have suffered for years from it. I am 77 years old. I have tried the laxatives as you suggested and it seemed to be effective, but I found I couldn't get along very well without taking it daily. . . . (J. J. A.)
Answer—Well, suppose you alternate between a spoonful or two of whole flaxseed and a chew of senna leaves. Then if either threatens to fix itself on you as a habit you can switch to the other and break the habit as often as necessary.

Regulator Mechanism

I would thank you for advice on how to regulate the bowels. (D. W.)
Answer—Each set of bowels provided with a very efficient automatic regulating mechanism, and all you have to do is let it alone. If that advice comes 3 years or so too late, I'll send you instructions how to undo the evil results of your years of crude interference. In other words how to overcome the habit of constipation, on receipt of your request (not a clipping) and a stamped self addressed envelope.

THE COMPLETE ANGLER
A little tale has drifted down here from Mountain that perhaps we really ought not repeat. A newspaperman who was a novice at trout fishing hooked a very small trout and had wound it till it was rammed against the end of the rod.

"Climb up the rod and stab the fish," was the nonchalant reply.

That buck saw might come in handy at W. H.'s summer cottage.

The American Legion ought to adopt a buck saw as its emblem. They wouldn't have gotten that bonus, if they hadn't kept on saving wood.

Artists See Capital As Gray City

BY FREDERIC J. HASKIN

Washington, D. C.—While London, city of smoke and fog, is becoming cleaner every day, Washington with its white buildings is falling a prey to grime. The old saying that London climate on a clear day is like looking up a chimney, and London climate on a foggy day is like looking down the chimney, no longer holds true. The famous London fogs are becoming comparatively rare.

The British capital awoke some time ago to the realization that smoke menaced its health and civic attractiveness. An artist, Sir William Richmond, started a Smoke Abatement society, and since then London factories have been compelled to consume their own smoke.

This is cited as an indication that the British capital is alert, to making most of its aesthetic values. In Washington, however, the capitol is periodically scrubbed, the war department is sprayed off with a fire department hose, and smoke regulations are passed, but the government's supposedly snowy offices are more often than not subdued to a soft, not very pleasing gray.

COUPLE "SEEING" CAPITAL
A British miniature painter and his wife, and American novelist, have been translating the national capitol into their "respective arts, and incidentally they have been "seeing Washington" from individual angles.

The painter is Allyn Williams, founder and president of the Royal Society of Miniature Painters, which has been responsible for a revival of the delicate art of painting little portraits on ivory. He has painted some of the loveliest women of British and American capitals. His wife, Anna Dorsey Williams, is the author of a novel of Washington life which is appearing this year. She was born in Washington, and lived for a number of years in Capitol Hill and in old Georgetown.

To these two artists Washington appears as a city beautiful, a city of Arabian Nights variety, but a city in considerable danger of being spoiled.

Thus, Mr. Williams looks up from his studio window where he is painting a full length miniature of a Washington beauty, and waves a paint brush toward the new headquarters of the United States chamber of Commerce, a white stone structure very well in keeping with the colonial and Greek styles of the older government buildings.

SMOKE MARS BEAUTY
A city of white marble against a background of blue sky and green parks and trees is an inspiring plan for a nation's capital, he remarks in British accent, and the plan is being consistently carried out in most of the new public buildings. But white temple-like structures swept by smoke are not so beautiful.

Washington is in grave danger of being commercialized, the novelist contributes to the conversation. It is not a manufacturing city and probably will never be permitted to become one. But the demand for office space is resulting in more and more temporary structures which jostle the public buildings.

London and Paris sprang up without definite plan for their careers as national capitals. Washington is more fortunate. It has not yet acquired the fascinating mellowness of the old European cities but it has all ways had before it the prospect of becoming the modern Athens. Now, the commercialism threatens to dwarf the public buildings by towering offices or in other cities, but, as a devotee of Washington, Mrs. Williams says emphatically that laws should prohibit commercial structures from spoiling the effect of the three and four story government buildings.

Isn't it always a matter of money?

A multi-millionaire standing in front of a Cadillac Sales Room might wrinkle his brow and ask, "Shall I buy one or shall I buy ten?"

A man without a dollar to his name—standing in the same spot—might ask the same question and very properly be held for insanity—yet the only difference between the two is a matter of Purse—not Person.

Pocketbooks do count—we know it—and because we understand that all bank accounts are not born equal—we bring our prices down to where we can do business with the most men.

To-day this store is showing fine merchandise at affordable prices—and to-day this store is doing the business of College Avenue.

SLAUGHTERING A CLASSIC

A wall of protest has gone up because Hendrik Van Loon, "The Story of the Bible" and I do not intend to read it. As a general thing I can see little or no use in "simplifying" classics. Nine times out of ten a classic is spoiled in the process and nine times out of ten the boys and girls, for whom the "simplifications" are made, would get more profit and pleasure out of reading the originals. Van Loon is an able writer but I do not believe even the ablest writer can profitably spend his time "simplifying" the Bible or almost any classic. And that applies also to practically all the children's "Bible stories" as well, to which there is no objection on religious or theological grounds.

Recently an American classic, Dana's "Two Years Before the Mast," has been subjected to a similar process of "simplification" on the theory that boys and girls are not equal to reading the original. And that is all nonsense. Any boy or girl of average intelligence who cannot read "Two Years Before the Mast," as written by Dana, can safely be classed as an intellectual person.

MISTAKE TO REVISE
But two schoolmarm's thought differently. They are Mattie Hawley and Elizabeth Gordon, teachers of English in the high school of commerce of Worcester, Mass. They thought that "Two Years Before the Mast" was too deep for the average boy and girl and so they set themselves the task of simplifying it. The result is a book which might have been expected. The vigor of the original, the peculiar personal quality that has made it a truly great book, has been lost and in its place has come a book in which the experiences of the youth who sailed before the mast in the rough days of the sailing vessels have passed through the finicky minds of two old maids who have very decided ideas on what is "nice" and not "nice." And many a poor boy who doesn't know any better is going to read this denatured edition of a great experience, for to read an authentic book like "Two Years Before the Mast," is an experience not to be lightly regarded. Boys who are cheated out of it are losing something of value.

The same thing has been done again and again with "Robinson Crusoe" a few innumerable other great classics. Any normal boy of average intelligence who cannot read with pleasure and grasp "Robinson Crusoe" as DeFoe wrote it is not worthy of having the book simplified for him. And the same thing is true of most of the classics that are subjected to this process.

UNDERESTIMATE ABILITY
The fact is that the powers of boys and girls to enjoy and understand great books are greatly underestimated by the people who go in for simplifying classics. And even when they do not understand all of a classic they are not better off reading it than reading its denatured "simplified" edition. The normal boy would be better off reading and understanding half of Dana's "Two Years Before the Mast" than reading and understanding all of the two school marm's idea of what part of Dana it is good for a boy to read.

William McFee, himself a seaman and a great admirer of seamen and sea writers, has set up a loud protest against the desecration committed by the Worcester school teachers on Dana's classic. With a malice that is highly enjoyable under the circumstances McFee has pointed out innumerable examples that authors themselves did not understand what they were reading. Some of their translations of nautical terms are ludicrous but the editors become very funny when they try to convert words and phrases which they consider not "nice" into genteel ones.

LETTER FROM JOHN ALDEN PRESCOTT TO SYDNEY CARTON, CONTINUED

Ruth Ellington met me in her little private office. Syd. and I went to tell you that woman is one of the cleverest I have ever seen—and as hard as nails.

She told me Leslie was convinced that little Jack was your child, and wanted to know if I had told this to Leslie. She asked it in such a manner that I knew she knew the truth. Consequently, I told her the whole thing and explained that I had never as far as I knew even intimated you were the father of little Jack.

I must have been a pretty abject person, for her only comment after listening to me for about 15 minutes was, "Men sometimes must pay the piper, thank God."

Before she began to lay plans to keep Leslie from being unhappy, she informed me she would not stir a finger if it were not for my wife. "You have been particularly nasty to me, Jack. You have arrogated to yourself the right to do anything you please and make no explanations to Leslie, and you insisted that she not only should tell you her reasons for doing things but should abide by your decision in the matter."

"You have insured me by telling me you thought I had practically stolen the money that you found me putting in Leslie's wall safe, and you have added injury to insult by taking that money away from Leslie and keeping it, thus overturning some very important plans of mine for its disposal."

"At that," she continued, "I think perhaps you are a bigger fool than you are a villain. Most men are. You have tried to carry things with a very high hand, Jack, but you found you couldn't do it. Now that you are in a tight place you come, as men always do, to a woman to be helped out of it."

"Why is it that when anything terrible happens all men say, 'Look for the woman,' when down in every man's heart he knows he has never had anything good come into his life that some woman has not brought to him.

"Thank God the day is coming. In fact it is nearly here, when you will really have to acknowledge this. Love and marriage will be a fifty-fifty proposition. A woman will not only belong to the man she loves but a man will belong to her and each one will belong to the other only as long as love lasts."

"I shall have to wait until after I have talked with Leslie before I can advise you freely, Jack, but I want you to understand that my whole sympathy is with her first. Then, with Paula Perier. You don't enter into it at all. I would sacrifice you as quickly as I would tear this paper into strips (she snatched the paper from the words). If I can keep Leslie happy and make Paula Perier understand whatever is best."

While she was giving me this lecture, Syd. I kept growing smaller and smaller and she seemed to get an idea of this for she stopped abruptly, and then began:

"I don't think anything will matter much to Leslie if she does not have to give up the boy."

"What do you mean?" I asked stupidly.

TOMORROW: John Prescott continues his letter—A new light on Leslie.

WHAT IS THE USE OF LIVING?

What is the use of living when a woman gets up in the morning as tired as when she went to bed at night with headache, backache, dragging-down pains, nervous, irritable and despondent? These are all symptoms of ailments peculiar to her sex which makes life a burden. Every woman in this condition should rely on Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, a good old-fashioned remedy made from roots and herbs. It contains no narcotics or harmful drugs, and for fifty years has been restoring women to health and strength and the joys of living.

Paid Fancy Prices

"I paid an international authority on diseases of the stomach $1,500 and he didn't do me five cents worth of good. I have been to various Spas in Europe, as well as this country and have spent fully $30,000 fruitlessly in search of a cure for my stomach trouble. Naturally I lost faith in any remedy for my case. My wife's brother had taken Mayr's Wonderful Remedy and praised it so highly that I tried it and am now entirely rid of that trouble." (Continued from Our Last Issue)

The Classifieds and the Unclassifieds rarely mixed. Not at all. The Classifieds, boys and girls, were, for the most part, slim young lads with caps and pipes and sweaters, their talk of football, baseball, girls; slim young girls in sheer shirtwaists with pink ribbons run through the corset covers showing beneath, pleated skirts that switched delightfully as they strolled across the campus arm in arm, their talk of footie games, fudge, clothes, boys. The Student Body, Midwest turned them out by the hundreds—almost by the link, one might say, as Aug Hempel's sausage factory turned out its fine plump sausages, each one exactly like the one behind and the one ahead of it. So many hurriedly graduated by this year's class. So many more hundreds to be graduated in next year's class. Occasionally an unruly sausage burst its skin and was discarded. They attended a university because their parents—thrifty shopkeepers, manufacturers, merchants, or professional men and their good wives—wanted their children to have an education. Were ambitious for them. "I couldn't have it myself, and always regretted it. Now I want my boy for girl to have a good education that'll fit 'em for the battle of life. This is an age of specialization, let me tell you."

Football, fudge, I said to Jim. I said to Bessie. The Unclassifieds would no more have deliberately cut a class than they would have thrown their sparse weekly budget allowance into the gutter. If it had been physically possible they would have attended two lectures, prepared two papers simultaneously. Drab and earnest, between thirty and forty-eight, their hair not an ornament but something to be plucked quickly out of the way, their clothes a covering, their shoes not even smartly "sensible" but just shoes, scuffed, patched, utilitarian. The men were serious, shabby, often spectacled; dandruff on their coat collars; their lined anxious faces a contrast to the fresh, boyish, carefree countenances of the Classifieds. They said, carefully almost concisely, "Political Economy, Applied Psychology." Most of them had worked ten years, fifteen years for this deferred schooling. This one had had to support a mother; that one a family of younger brothers and sisters. This plump woman of thirty-nine, with the tiny kindly face that had a puzzled father. Another had known poverty with fifteen years of painful penny savings to bring true this gloriously realized dream of a university education. Here was one studying to be a trained Social Service Worker. She had done everything from housework as a servant girl to clerking in a 5- and 10-cent store. She had studied evenings, saved pennies, nickels, dimes, quarters. Other valuable educational experience in practical life. They had it, God knows. They regarded the university at first with the foreboding eyes of a bridegroom who looks with the passionate tenderness of passion upon his mistress for whom he has worked and waited through the years of his youth. The university was to bring back that vanished youth—and something more. Wisdom. Knowledge. Power. Understanding. They would have died for it—they almost had, what with privation, self-denial, work. They came with love clasped close in their two hands, an offering. "Take me," they cried. "I come with all I have. Devotion, hope, desire to learn, a promise to be a credit to you. I have had experience, bitter-sweet experience. I have known the battle. See, here are my scars. I can bring to your classrooms much that is valuable. I ask only for bread—the bread of And the University gave them a knowledge."

The professor found them a shade too eager, perhaps; too inquiring; demanding too much. They stayed after class and asked innumerable questions. They bristled with interrogation. They were prone to hold forth in the class room. "Well, I have found it to be the case in my experience that—"

But the professor preferred to do the lecturing himself. If there was to be any experience related it should come from the teacher's platform, not the student's chair. Besides, this sort of thing interfered with the routine: kept you from covering ground fast enough. The period bell rang, and there you were, halfway through the day's prescribed lesson.

In his first year Dirk made the almost fatal mistake of being rather friendly with one of these Unclassifieds—a female Unclassified. She was in his Pol Econ class and sat next to him. A large, good-humored, plump girl, about thirty-eight, with a shiny skin which she never powdered and thick hair that exuded a disagreeable odour of oil. She was sympathetic and jolly, but her clothes were a fright, and no matter how cold the day there was always a half-moon of stain showing under her armpits. She had a really fine mind, quick, eager, balanced, almost judicial. She knew just what references were valuable, which useless. Just how to go about getting information for next day's class; for the weekly paper to be prepared. Her name was Schwengauer—Mattie Schwengauer. Terrible!

"Here," she would say good-naturally, to Dirk. "You don't need to read all those. My, no! I'll tell you. You'll get exactly what you want by reading pages 256 to 257 in Blaine's; 549 to 567 in Jaekel; and the first eleven—no, twelve—pages of Trowbridge's report. That'll give you practically everything you need."

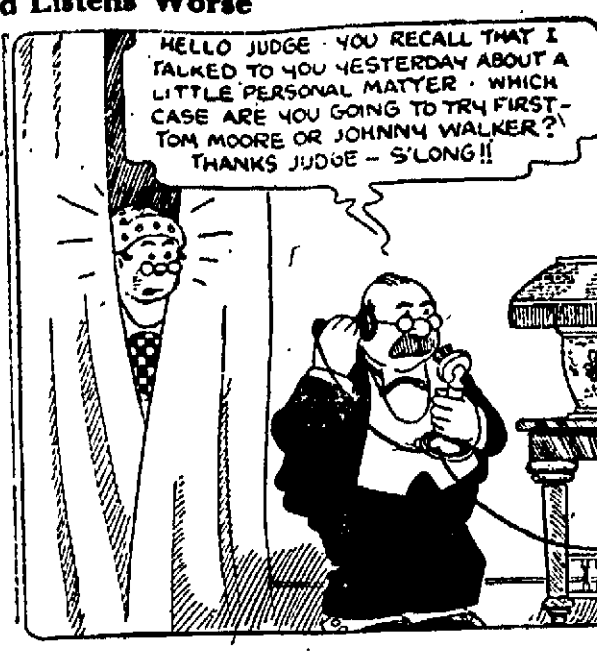

Dirk was grateful. Her notes were always copious, perfect. She never hesitated to let him copy them. They got in the way of walking out of the classroom together, across the campus. She told him something of herself. "Your people 'farmers'?" Surprised, she looked at his well-cut clothes, his slim, strong, unmarked hands, his smart shoes and cap. "They, so to speak, are." She pronounced it so. "I lived on the farm all my life till I was twenty-seven. I always wanted to go away to school, but we never had the money and I couldn't come to town to earn because I was the oldest, and Ma was sickly after Emma—that's the youngest—there are nine of us—was born. Ma was anxious I should go and Pa was willing, but it couldn't be. No fault of theirs. One year the summer would be so hot, with no rain hardly from spring till fall, and the corn would just dry up on the stalks, like paper. The next year it would be so wet the seed would rot in the ground. Ma died when I was twenty-six. The kids were all pretty well grown up by that time. Pa married again in a row and I went to Des Moines to work. I stayed there six years but I didn't save much on account of my brother. He was kind of wild. He had come to Des Moines, too, after Pa married. He and Aggie—that's the second wife—didn't get along. I came to Chicago about five years ago. I've done all kinds of work. I guess, except digging in a coal mine, I'd have done that if I'd had a chance."

She told him all this incoherently, simply. Dirk felt drawn toward her, sorry for her. His was a nature quick to sympathy. Something she said now stirred him while it bewildered him a little, too.

PAPERMAKERS INVADE CHAIR CITY ON SUNDAY

Sheboygan Contest Is Expected To Be Close Battle Of Mound Aces

Shakeup of Appleton Club After Defeat by Kaukauna Puts New Pep in Team for Tilt With League Leaders.

Appleton is slated for one of the hardest baseball contests of the season when the Papermakers invade Sheboygan Sunday afternoon. The Chieftains jumped to the top last Sunday by defeating Green Bay, 3 to 2, while the Pals were bowing to "Bull" Durham's tribe by the same score, and the Appleton club will have to contend with one of the two best clubs in the circuit.

Injuries and a release have necessitated several changes in the Appleton lineup. Ted Lamers is out of the game for a few weeks with an injured shin, and Brickmeyer has been replaced by Les Smith. Red Smith also is back from college and has taken up his old position on third. The brothers both are fast and good hitters, and almost daily practice with the industrial clubs of which they are members keeps them in fine shape.

DUEL OF PITCHERS
Sunday's contest is expected to be a pitchers' duel between Eddie Stacks and Buster Braun, the veteran Sheboygan twirler. Braun has been pitching since Methuselah wore short pants but the position of his team in the league standings indicates he still is going strong. Stacks should be able to beat him however, for he has defeated the Pals, pulling himself out of a deep hole after the Neenah-Menasha outfit had taken an 8-run lead in the first two innings.

The shakeup after Sunday's defeat at the hands of Kaukauna is expected to put the Papermakers on their mettle. They have had hard breaks recently and with any kind of a decent chance the Sunday battle will put them back on their feet.

LENGLEN WILL SEE HELEN IN ACTION
Suzanne Lenglen expects to witness Wimbledon Tournament Matches Wednesday.

London—Her bluish hidden beneath the brownest of sunburn, Helen Wills, American woman tennis champion, was fit and ready for the fight of her life Tuesday as she and her companions on the American team got into some final practice flicks for the Wightman cup matches which start at Wimbledon Wednesday.

The entire American team, which includes Miss Eleanor Goss, Mrs. Wightman and Mrs. Marion Z. Jessup, is in the first physical condition, although they were hampered by poor weather recently from getting in all the training they would have liked.

Miss Suzanne Lenglen was due to arrive Wednesday to take a look at Miss Wills' play in the Wightman cup matches. The French girl is scheduled to play several exhibition matches but has not yet promised to defend her singles title at Wimbledon.

Lenglen will play in the doubles but not in the singles, it is believed unless she feels she can defeat Miss Wills.

COMBINED LOCKS MILLMEN SWAMP M'MILLEN CLUB

Strong Oshkosh Team Shut Out, 18 to 0, in First Tilt in Milltown

Combined Locks Millmen Saturday opened the baseball season on their home park by defeating the Oshkosh McMillems, 18 to 0. Pitcher Vanden Heuvel had a big day, allowing but 6 hits in as many innings, and Les Smith who relieved him, allowed three in the rest of the game. Both Red and Les Smith are back after their absence at school, and are expected to play for the rest of the season.

The Millmen scored all their runs in the first five innings, piling up six in the first, two in the second, one in the third, four in the fourth and five in the fifth, while the McMillems were held scoreless. The Combined Locks aggregation played in midseason form and never was in trouble. The park at Combined Locks had been put in condition and boasts one of the best diamonds in the valley. The attendance was large at the opening game and indications are that the season will be even more successful than last year.

Marty Lamers is manager of the club. He announces the team still has a number of open games which it desires to fill. Games may be arranged for Saturday afternoons by writing Marty Lamers or Secretary Louis Servis at Combined Locks, or by calling either at 67.

1921 Winner Is First To Enter Open Tourney

New York—Turned down as an entrant for 1924 open championship at Oakland Hills, James Barnes, 1921 winner, has become the first entrant for the national open championship in 1925. Officials of the United States Golf association said that his entry has been accepted, although neither the course nor the date has been named for next year. Barnes was turned down as a 1924 entrant because his application for permission to compete was not received until after the closing date.

Not all the pole vaulters are as nice to camera men as Greening of Cornell. Most of them turn their backs to the picture hounds as they clear the bar, but the Ithaca star turns clear around and gives the boys a full shot.

Rookie Who Held Vets Up For $6,000 Is Fired

New York—Ball players have been known to eat themselves out of the big league. Some have talked themselves out of the majors. Mike Gazella, who made the spring trip with the New York Yankees, enjoys the unique distinction of being the only player in captivity to finance himself out of the big show.

Gazella, a former Lafayette College star, joined the Yankees in June of last year. He was carried by the club throughout the season, although he got into only a couple of games for a few innings.

When the Yankees got into the world series the veteran stars on the club decided that a present of about $500 would be enough for Gazella.

The college recruit rebelled at so small a sum and took the matter up with Manager Huggins, who agreed with him. The two decided that about $1500 would be a fair split for Gazella. The regulars agreed to it.

Then after everything seemed settled, some kind of friend informed Gazella that he had been with the Yankees long enough to be entitled to a full share, under the baseball laws governing the disposition of world series prize money.

Gazella proceeded to take the matter up with Judge Landis, who sustained his plea, for a full share.

Thus the Yankee regulars, who at first intended to give Gazella only $500, were compelled by the judge to stip him a full share calling for something better than $6000.

"You don't mean to stand there and tell me that you are actually as simple as you look?"

"You must be one of them dumb eggs that believe everything you see and twice as much as you hear."

Do you know Baseball?

by Billy Evans.

QUESTIONS

1. With the score tied, ninth inning, pitcher fills the bases. He is taken out. Batsman hits safely on substitute pitcher, driving winning run across plate. What pitcher is charged with loss of game?—C. D. Y.

2. There is a runner on second base. The batsman hits a ground ball that strikes the base umpire working back of the pitcher on the foot. The pitcher recovers ball and throws runner out at third base. The umpire ruled that the runner who tried to go from second to third was retired at that base should return to second. He ruled a dead ball and made the batsman hit over. The batsman on his second chance doubled, spurring the runner from second. What is the correct ruling?—M. D.

ANSWERS

1. In the case you cite, the pitcher who put the runners on the bases is charged with the defeat, even though the hit that scored the winning run was made off the substituted pitcher. Scorers always strictly follow such a procedure in handling such situations.

2. When the umpire was hit by a batted ball, play was immediately suspended. The batsman was entitled to first base. No runners can advance on such a play except forced, therefore the runner originally on second should have simply remained on that base. The umpire erred in making the batsman hit over.

New York—Joe Stoeckel, New York heavyweight, was picked as the opponent of Quinlan Romero, in the 12-round final of the Velodrome A. C. card after the state athletic commission refused to accept Andy Schumaker as an opponent for Jack Renault, Canadian heavyweight.

WESTERN OARSMEN DEFEAT GREATEST ROWERS OF EAST

Washington Takes First for Second Time With Wisconsin Close Astern

Poughkeepsie, N. Y.—Westward the star of rowing empire takes its way.

So far as the thirty seventh annual Poughkeepsie regatta, rowed on the Hudson Tuesday, is concerned, "W" stands for Washington, Wisconsin. West and win. The water and the climate and most of the spectators were eastern, but otherwise everything was of the west.

For the second year in succession the rowing huskies of Washington, coached by "Rus" Callow, showed a fast-moving boat stern to the best, barring Yale and the Navy, that the east can show on a regatta course. And Wisconsin, rowing a magnificent race against what had been termed insurmountable barriers, won a great moral victory in trailing only the Washington boat in the classic varsity event. The men out of the open spaces gave the east a thrill and a fit of despondency.

Although a gripping spectacle and a feat calling for praiseful admiration Washington's victory was no more inspiring than that of Wisconsin. For any small boy in Poughkeepsie before the race would have predicted the Washington victory. But not even the experts dreamed that Wisconsin a green and untrained crew, would churn and grind its way to second place.

GUESTS VANQUISH HOSTS
The Wisconsin triumph was reminiscent of the 1915 second place victory of the Stanford university crew that came out of California to upset calculation and reputations. Like Stanford that year, Washington and Wisconsin Tuesday were invited guests, non-members of the inter-collegiate rowing association, merry makers at party, who departed with the hosts' silver plate.

Pennsylvania, winning both the freshmen and junior varsity races, but finishing fourth in the all-important varsity, made the east's only worth-while gesture. Otherwise, it was the west all the way. The Pennsylvania varsity eight had no chance against the westerners, and failed to live up to the persistent prediction that it would be the only crew to give Washington a battle.

Dad Vall's Wisconsin men did not begin their real battle until the second mile mark was reached. Off to a poor start, they trailed in fifth place up to the last mile, in which their powerful, tireless stroke shot their shell ahead of Columbia, Pennsylvania, and Cornell to second place.

It was a great drive and it brought the watching thousands to their feet with great cries. "Go it, Wisconsin!" shouted the Washington substitutes and junior varsity oarsmen from the band leading their mighty moral support to a second place for the west. The west struck together. In fact, Wisconsin and Washington used the same boat house.

KAUKAUNA COMERS DEFEAT APPLETON

Green Bay Scheduled to Play Regulars Here Second Time Sunday

Kramer's Kaukauna Comers Sunday treated the Appleton Regulars to their second taste of defeat this season, 8 to 2, despite the fact that Brautigan allowed but six hits. Countless errors on the part of several new men in the Regulars' lineup helped the Comers to their victory.

Sunday afternoon Green Bay invaded this city for the second time. The Baymen also have defeated the Appleton club once this year, and the Regulars will try hard to even the score. The game probably will be played at Interlake park here.

HIRING WASHERS WILL PLAY COMBINED LOCKS

Thirg Washers, one of the strongest industrial teams of Oshkosh and of the valley, Saturday afternoon will invade Combined Locks for a return game with the Millmen there. The Washers defeated the Millmen, 5 to 2, in their previous contest in Oshkosh, and the Combined Locks team is out for revenge. An extremely close game is in prospect, and it is expected the park will be crowded with fans.

LARK TWILIGHT LEAGUE POSTPONES FIRST GAME

Rotaries and Lions who were scheduled to open the Lark Twilight baseball season Tuesday afternoon at Jones park were forced to postpone their contest because of rain. The advertising club and Kiwanis are due to lock horns Thursday afternoon, which will make them the openers.

Paris—France defeated India in the third round of the Davis cup elimination play.

WALKER WON CROWN BY PLAYING "WIND SHOTS" IN TOURNEY

Britisher's Ability to Control Ball in Gale Brought Him Honors

Detroit—Because Cyril Walker, midget New Jersey professional, knows how to control a shot in a roistering gale, he is the new open golf champion of America.

Walker was born in England and spent his boyhood days caddyding for Johnny Ball, Sandy Herd, Harold Hilton and other notables on the windswept, seaside courses, where every shot demanded rare judgment and an advanced technique.

It is one thing to play a golf shot in a dead calm. It is quite another to play the same shot in the teeth of a howling wind.

On the day of the championship finals at Oakland Hills the wind roared across the fairways with cyclonic fury. Simple iron shot holes became hard, testing wooden drives. Balls hit high into the air were wafted far off the line and carried deep into trouble.

Beating par was no longer the big idea. Beating the elements was much more important.

WEATHER SUITED

This was the kind of weather Walker revelled in up to his sunburned ears. It was English golf weather. Years ago, back on the homeland courses, Walker had mastered the art of playing with and against gales. It was no trick for him to keep the ball high, and sail with the wind, or keep it low and offset wind resistance.

Walker won the championship with a blazing iron shot to the sixteenth green in the afternoon round—one of the great shots of American golf by the way. Only a few moments before, Walter Hagen, the American homo bred, a heavy favorite to win, had tried the same shot and failed. This one episode told the whole story of Walker's triumph.

The sixteenth at Oakland Hills is a par 4 hole, 354 yards long, and on the day of the finals, with the wind blowing a gale directly in the face of the players, was the hardest hole on the course. A lake of considerable proportions faces the green. It is over this lake that the second shot must be played.

HAGEN COULDN'T DO IT
Hagen got off a tremendous drive under the circumstances, and was left with a full iron shot to the green 160 yards away. If he could plough through the wind and get home safely he would still be in the fight for the title. But the wind whipped him. His ball was short. It dropped into the lake and he was through.

Walker's drive was no better than Hagen's but just as good. Here he was facing the same test as his. If he failed it might go to Billy Stahlhorn or Bob Jones, who were already in with low scores.

Well, Walker didn't fail. His old training and fine nerve served him nobly. The ball carried strong and true and dropped pin high nine feet from the hole. He had judged the wind perfectly and played the shot like a master. It won him the title.

BASEBALL MEETING IS CALLED FOR THURSDAY
Fans and backers of the Appleton club of the Wisconsin State Baseball league will meet at 8 o'clock Thursday evening in the Elks clubhouse here to discuss matters relating to the team. All those interested are invited to attend.

Detroit Tigers Climb To Second Place When Boston Goes Down, 7-4

Yanks Win, 7 to 5, When Babe Swats His Sixteenth Homer in Uphill Contest with Cleveland.

Over the prostrate forms of the skidding Red Sox, the Detroit Tigers climbed into second place in the American league and Wednesday again are threatening the supremacy of the world champion Yankees. With a 7 to 4 victory, Detroit made it three straight over Boston.

After staking Cleveland to a 5-run lead in the first three innings, the Yankees, led by Ruth, who clouted out his sixteenth homer of the season, pulled themselves together and won an uphill victory, 7 to 5. Babe brought in the winning run in the seventh, when, by a brilliant burst of speed, he scored from second while Rother was throwing out Pipp at first.

Pummeling four White Sox pitchers with 15 lusty blows, the fast traveling Senators recorded a 12 to 6 triumph. Chicago also pounded Zachary and Marberry for 13 hits but failed to bunch them as effectively as their opponents.

NATIONAL LEADERS STEADY

The three leaders in the National league, the Giants, Cubs and Robins, maintained their relative standing with victories. "Long George" Kelly resumed his homerun spree by slamming one of Horton's offerings for a round trip. The final count was 5 to 3, with the Cardinals on the small end. The Cubs, who are rapidly earning the White Sox's former name of "hitless wonders," produced six runs on four hits, coupled with five errors and eight passes, and trimmed Art Fletcher's not-too-hopefuls, 6 to 5.

In spite of the stick work of Rogers, who hammered out a double, triple and homer, Brooklyn made it two straight over Cincinnati with a 5 to 4 win. Pittsburgh practically ruined Boston's Bunker Hill day celebration by taking the first game of a double header, 5 to 2, and giving the Braves a close rub in the sunset encounter, which the home team nosed out by 1 to 0.

In the American association, Columbus delighted itself by marking up a third straight victory over Kansas City, 7 to 6, while Louisville whacked the Saints, 3 to 1.

At Indianapolis, Minneapolis, broke even in a twin ball game winning the first game 6 to 4, and losing the second 8 to 6.

Milwaukee dropped four games to Toledo, winning one of Tuesday's pair 8 to 6, the first game going to the Mud Hens, 8 to 2.

THIRD WARDERS SWAMP PARKER SPECIALS TEAM

Third Ward Teenie Weenies Tuesday swamped the Parker Specials, 9 to 3, in a fast game on the reservoir diamond. The Teenie Weenies were in the lead all through the contest after Schuldes' two bagger brought in the first run in the third, and there after the Third Warders were never in danger.

Parker and Zuehlke starred for the Specials, while Schuldes and the two Ryans and Roemers scored for the winners.

Youngstown, O.—Mike O'Dowd of Columbus, bantamweight, won a technical knockout over Eddie Bowen, Sharen, in the ninth round of a scheduled ten-round bout.
